Say board's actions prevent integration

The Indianapolis Board of School Commissioners has been asked to rescind its resolution creating a 7th and 8th grade unit at School 114, or face a civil suit.

Bishop John P. Craine, president of the Indianapolis local branch of the Urban League, announced the league's intention to take action against the board, charging them with halting integration, during a meeting of league officials late last week.

The league officials said a suit may be filed due to the school board's decision to create higher grades at School 114 on the city's Southside. The league contends this move will promote segregation because many white parents are now invited to transfer their children to School 111, just three blocks away.

"This will likely result in a black ratio greater than 50 percent for School 114," said Bishop Craine. "If both these results occur, then this school system will again find itself guilty of de jure segregation and in violation of Judge (S.

Climaxing nearly seven years of legal entanglement, a 36-year-old Indianapolis man has been sentenced to life imprisonment in the widely-publicized killing of a local policeman.

Nathaniel Harold Harris heard sentence pronounced upon him Tuesday, Sept. 5, by Hancock Superior Court Judge Richard Payne. ## Indianapolis man is victim as Gary dope war continues

GARY, ----
The deadly war for control of this city's multi-million dollar narcotics traffic claimed victim's number 20 and 21 this week--one of them tentatively identified as a small-time Indianapolis drug pusher whose body was discovered Tuesday in a Gary scrapyard. Gary police estimated the victim had been dead about a week.

The body of the man believed to be from Indianapolis has been tentatively identified as Richard Lee (Moon) Williams, 38, whose last known Indianapolis address was 2358 N. Central.

Gary police said the body, believed to be Williams, was "pretty well decomposed" and that a positive identification could not be made until Williams' fingerprints arrive from Indianapolis and are checked against those of the dead man.

Gary police recovered a letter from the victim's pocket which was addressed to a Richard Lee Williams and the dead man matches Williams' general physical description which had been supplied by the Indianapolis Police Department.

Capt. William Owens, who heads the Indianapolis Police Department's narcotics branch, described Williams as "a heavy narcotics user who would push a little stuff on occasion to help support his own habit."

According to Owens, Williams had not been arrested for several years on narcotics charges, although he has been jailed several times on other charges.

Owens said Wednesday that

Hobson Reynolds reelected Elks' grand exalted ruler

ST. LOUIS, ----
Hobson R. Reynolds, the controversial leader of the Improved Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the World, last Saturday turned aside a challenge his re-election to another two-year term as grand exalted ruler of the all-black lodge.

Mr. Reynolds, a 72-year-old undertaker from Philadelphia, has been in office since 1960. He was reelected by acclamation at a closed meeting of delegates to the Grand Lodge sessions at the Chase-Dickerson Plaza Hotel here. Carl O. Dicerson, a former steel mill worker who was installed by Mr. Reynolds to fill a vacancy two-and-one-half years ago was reelected grand secretary.

Only registered delegates were admitted to the Grand Lodge sessions. Even the man for whom the opposition to Mr. Reynolds had expected to vote was barred.

A spokesman confirmed that Joseph E. Honore Jr., a Manhattan real-estate broker, had been barred from registering on the ground that he had not been sent to the convention by his home lodge.

However, others who would have supported Mr. Honore's bid for election as grand exalt-

Holiday violence leaves 2 dead; 4 held for murder

Louisville duo found guilty in local killing

A youthful male-female duo from Louisville have been convicted in the robbery-slaying earlier this year of an Indianapolis wife of a service station operator.

A jury returned a verdict of guilty on a first-degree murder charge in Marion County Criminal Court against pretty Miss Marina Martin, 17, and Kenneth Thornton, 22, both of Louisville. Convicted Friday, September 1, they are scheduled to be sentenced Friday, September 8.

John V. May, 47, said he grappled with a man March 17, suspected of stealing cash from his service station at 801 S. on U. S. 31. During the struggle, a shot rang out and his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth May, 39, slumped to the ground mortally wounded.

Miss Martin and Thornton were apprehended minutes later about 20 miles from the scene by Franklin police and Johnson County sheriff's deputies.

$1.5 million sought through Business Opportunity Fair

The 1972 Indianapolis Business Opportunity Fair will be held on Sept. 26, in the Indiana Convention-Exposition Center, 100 South Capitol Ave.

Minority owned businesses hope to receive contracts generated from the 50 participating corporations. The goal for the 1972 Fair is to produce at least 1.5 million dollars in contracts for minority owned businesses. Minority businessmen and women from the State of Indiana are encouraged to participate in all the activities.

A very special pre-fair seminar will be conducted on Sept. 14 at 7:30 p.m., in the Pearl's Ballroom of the Foster Motor Lodge, 116 McLean Place. The seminar, titled: "How To Obtain Contract From Major Corporations," will have in-depth discussion on the best techniques and procedures to use in conducting business with major corporations. The seminar will certainly help anyone to spruce up their selling techniques.

Blacks at all levels among 1972 political hopefuls

Never before in Indiana politics have blacks had opportunity to participate at all levels of government! In this fall's elections, Hoosier blacks will be represented by candidates--both Democratic and Republican--vying from positions from state representative to attorney general.

Heading this bevy of office hopefuls is Theodore Wilson, brilliant and reputable young lawyer, running for attorney general. The first non-white to seek this office, he also holds the distinction of being the first black nominated for a statewide office. Wilson, a Democrat, was an assistant attorney general under John Dillan.

Among the black candidates, the only incumbent from Marion County is Ray Crowe, state legislator from District 42.

nessmen an increased share of state business, we will open new programs in the area of health, and we will make certain that every man who has paid his debt to society can return from our penal institutions to a promising life in our community," he promised.

Washington Park improvements are sought by 7 organizations

The Community Development Council of Community School 69 has been joined by six leaders of eastside organizations in requesting that the Department of Parks and Recreation make improvements in Washington Park.

In a letter to Mrs. David Meeker, administrative assistant, the Council, which has dubbed the program "Project Washington," pointed out that Washington Park is not being used to its fullest.

Washington Park serves thousands of citizens from the immediately surrounding area not to mention many others from other locations who come to enjoy the benefits.

"Presently, the recreation area seems to be needlessly concentrated in the area surrounding the present shelterhouse. We propose to change this and various other conditions," the communication read.

The Council, with the cooperation of the Oxford Neighborhood Association, Ideal Civic League, Airside Civic Club, Forest Manor Neighborhood Association, Twin Hills Tenants Council, and All Inc., made a list of suggestions and requests for the park department's cooperation.

The organizations' comments were in relation to a letter the Oxford association received on Feb. 22, 1972, from the Department of Parks and Recreation stating improvements for Washington Park which were included in the 1972 bond issue.

The Community Development Council Park Committee has done recent surveys of the park, and listed its findings and is requesting a briefing on the progress of the department's plans for completing this work promised. The list is as follows:

1. GRADING. No such visible signs thus far. An area in the street immediately south of the shelterhouse is a mud-hole when it rains and where the adjacent soil is becoming badly eroded as a consequence.

2. SHELTERHOUSE. North-

ing seems to have been done to the presently inadequate structure. This one should be improved and a large new one be constructed in another area of the park to provide more adequate facilities and to disburse the concentration of people.

3. RESTROOM. This was in very poor condition. The floors on both sides (men and women) were covered with water, and the odor was very unpleasant. The new restroom planned is badly needed.

3. LANDSCAPING. The grass is being cut on a more regular basis now. There are still unsightly patches of grass growing around the trees. Some flowers should be planted. Flowers concentrated in one location with a small statue or two erected are needed to beautify and to serve as a sort of landmark for the park.

4. NEW PARKING AREAS AND WALKWAYS. None exists so far. New parking areas would help reduce the number of cars parking in the grass. A paved parking area is particularly needed in the vicinity of the baseball diamonds, as well as many other small ones disbursed throughout the park. Walkways are a needed safety feature as well as a means of reducing the number of "trodden paths" which are emerging.

The organizations further requested improvements requiring a minimal amount of time and expense as follows:

1. BASKETBALL COURTS. There are none presently. Three or more are requested at widely separated points around the park.

2. PLAYGROUND EQUIPMENT. More equipment for the already existing area plus two additional play areas - one in the vicinity of 34th and Rural and one in the vicinity of 30th and Dearborn.

3. WADING POOL. The pool did not contain water and was not being used on any of the survey days (which were warm). This pool is an asset which should be put to better use.

4. TENNIS COURTS. Grass is growing on the courts. Two nets are not in good condition, and one net has no netting whatsoever.

5. PICNIC TABLES. There are many expanses of unused space which lend themselves quite well to picnicking. People have found it necessary to bring their own tables and chairs to establish desirable "spots."

6. TRASH BARRELS. They have been painted bright colors as a pleasant improvement. To decrease the probability of littering and to cut down on the problem of overflowing cans noted, barrels should be placed next to every set of tables rather than at a central point for two or three.

7. BARBEQUE GRILLS. Several of these scattered throughout the park as a service to the community are requested.

8. WATER FOUNTAINS. The only fountain in existence is in need of repair. Many are needed in a park of this size. A water cooler placed in the shelterhouse is also requested.

The projected planning for the areas asked by the groups were as follows:

1. SWIMMING POOL. Much is involved but a great need for a pool in this area is noted. There are no pools within comfortable walking distance from many homes, and Douglas Park Pool, the nearest, is extremely crowded. Suggested is an enclosed pool to make optimum use of the tax money spent. This would be a definite asset to the park as well as a means of increasing public support of outings to the zoo.

2. REGULAR PARK STAFF. A park of this size badly needs a paid staff of adequate proportion to keep it from being misused and to ensure its optimum use. Planned summer activities for the children would also be included here.

3. 'CREEK-BED' BEAUTIFICATION. The drainage ditch/creek located on the east side of Dearborn is unsightly. Instead it could become an asset to the park, given the proper amount of attention. Herman J. King, "Project Washington" chairman, stated: "We are fully aware that any public place remains only as beautiful and serviceable as the people who use it allow it to be. At the same time, we recognize the importance of public pride instilled by what is their's to use. The council is planning follow-up programs to promote pride in the improved park."

Supporters urging others to back Mrs. Van Buren for Senate

An enthusiastic team of workers is rallying around Mrs. Mary Helen Van Buren who is bidding for a seat in the State Senate in District 34 on the Republican ticket.

The group supporting the young politician is headed by Judge Rufus C. Kuykendall, chairman. John A. Henderson, treasurer, in securing funds from the general public, assured voters that Mrs. Van Buren will put forth a concerted effort on its behalf.

Backers of Mrs. Van Buren are encouraging traditionally Democratic voters to "scratch" the Demo candidate who is white and vote for their black aspirant.

"I have known Mrs. Van Buren for the past 20 years in which time I have known her to be honest and forthright in her activities. She has been in numerous civic activities for the betterment of the citizens of Indianapolis, and most particularly for the black citizens of our community. Mrs. Van Buren has been involved in the NAACP, the Indianapolis Urban League, and numerous other organizations that attempt to contribute to the social environment for the better," Mr. Henderson emphasized.

He continued: "I feel strongly that we should support those persons running for office who will put forth their best effort in our behalf regardless of party. And, if in the November election you have occasion to vote the Democratic ticket, I would encourage you to 'scratch' for Mrs. Van Buren. If you are, in fact voting the Republican ticket then I will ask you to cast your vote for her. Also I would encourage you to make certain that you do get out and

Third annual congress of NESCO is to attract 500

Residents of the Near East Side of Indianapolis will hold their Third Annual Congress, Sunday, Oct. 1, to review achievements and set new priorities in their determined struggle against social blight and deterioration of their aging central city neighborhood.

More than 500 representatives will meet in the Third Congress of NESCO beginning at 2 p.m. at Zion Evangelical United Church of Christ, North Street at New Jersey Street. NESCO stands for the Near East Side Community Organization, a citizen organized and operated group that is tackling head-on the many faced problems of their area.

NESCO spearheads efforts to obtain and direct expenditure of three million dollars of federally collected tax monies in 1971-72 that provides innovative services to assist individuals, families and agencies to rehabilitate housing, to find more jobs, to provide social services to the aged, poor and disadvantaged, upgrade educational opportunities, to provide day care for children, and improve the health care.

The last two years has witnessed the opening of a major Health Clinic which provides immediate, low cost for the nearly 50,000 residents in an area where doctors are scarce and no hospital exists.

The Near Eastside Multi-Service Center began operation in October, 1971, offering neighborhood services to the elderly, to families, the unemployed, youth, home owners and tenants and poverty stricken. Originally established by the Community Action Against Poverty Program (CAAP), the center has recently incorporated on its own and its success has prompted other agencies and neighborhoods to study its methods as a possible model for similar centers elsewhere in the city.

NESCO also supported the COP-E Academy which offers a way to education and training in job skills for high school dropouts; and Area Youth Ministry and a well planned and coordinated recreation program for children and youth at schools, churches and in neighborhood parks.

The Congress will consider a number of resolutions which individuals, neighborhoods, block clubs and churches submit, lifting up needs and problems they see in their immediate areas. Delegates will vote to disapprove or approve and refer these resolutions to appropriate committees of NESCO for planning, development and implementation of the program.

The Community Services Program which is directed by the Mayor's Office, will channel an expected 3.7 million dollars into the NESCO area in 1973 to continue existing programs and establish new ones.

Robert Green, NESCO President, will lead the afternoon and evening sessions of the Congress, assisted by eleven vice-presidents and a staff of full-time coordinators. Duane Etienne is executive director to the Citizens group.

On the agenda is a revision of By-Laws which would change the group from an organization of some 60 organizations to one of geographical units and vice-presidents. If the revisions are approved at the Congress, it is expected the new plan will go into effect about January 1, 1973.

The move is seen as a necessary step to assure greater citizen involvement in efforts to maintain and improve the total community. NESCO recently signed an agreement with the city of Indianapolis that improved procedures of the Department of Metropolitan Development and made citizen participation easier.

The Congress agenda will also include election of officers.

Courses vary at Manual's night school

A variety of courses will be offered by the Manual Evening School, according to Robert Gallamore, director, beginning for the fall semester beginning Sept. 11.

A counseling service will be available for all adults having questions about additional training, grade or high school completion, or any other problem.

Hobby and skill courses will include hair and wig styling, flower arranging, upholstery, power powder puff home maintenance, oil painting and sketching, conversational German, judo and self-defense, auto tune-up, knitting, speed and developmental reading, interior decorating, sewing, welding, gift wrapping, American Red Cross first aid, .22 caliber pistol and rifle marksmanship, powder puff auto maintenance, and woodworking and furniture repair.

Business courses offered include typewriting and typewriting review, shorthand, machine calculation, clerical practice, bookkeeping, general business, introduction to data processing, and filing. For further information call Mr. Gallamore at 787-8818.

Y program for fathers, sons or daughters

September is the month for checking into the YMCA Indian Princess and Indian Guide Programs sponsored by the YMCA of Greater Indianapolis.

This movement started in 1926 when an Ojibway Indian, Joe Friday, told some Midwestern YMCA officials that he didn't think non-Indian fathers were as close to their children as they should be. He believed that the society of fathers was more interested in building cities while the red man was more interested in building sons.

Recognizing the truth of Joe Friday, the YMCA has developed a program for fathers and sons called Y-Indian Guides and also a program for fathers and daughters called Y-Indian Princesses. Their aims are the same although the groups are operated separately. Their aims are:

- (1) To be clean in body and pure in heart.
- (2) To be "Pals Forever" with my dad/daughter or son.
- (3) To love the sacred circle of my family.
- (4) To be attentive while others speak.
- (5) To love my neighbor as myself.
- (6) To seek and preserve the beauty of the Great Spirit's work in Forest, field and stream.

The purpose of Y-Indian Guides and Y-Indian Princesses is to foster the companionship of father and his child. You need not be a member of the YMCA to join either program. Contact your local YMCA for more information. This program is designed for boys and girls in the first, second, and third grades.

African students have stroke of bad luck in city

Three African students, who are cousins, have had a bad stroke of luck during their brief stay in this city.

Austin Ricks, Richard Reeves, and Miss Julia White are literally clothesless because someone broke into their apartment at 27th and Illinois and made off with their personal possessions. The trio is from Liberia, West Africa, and are attending school here.

According to Miss Willa Thomas, director of the International Welcoming Committee, they are in need of clothing, and persons who can assist should call her at 283-8294. "They only have what's on their back," Miss Thomas stated.

Minority adoptions reach new high

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- (NBS)

Adoptions of black children and other minorities reached 21,000 in 1970, the most recent year for which figures are available.

Of the 21,000, according to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, 14,600 were black children. Total adoptions for 1970 were 175,000.

California reported more minority adoptions, 1,739, than any other state, followed by Texas, 1,045, and Michigan, 1,020. However, the percentage of minority adoptions among the total adoptions in a state were greatest in Hawaii, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Louisiana and South Carolina.

Black-white future hopes the same survey shows

Differences between black and white students at one of the nation's major urban campuses vanish in the statistics of their hopes for the future.

This is a major conclusion of an extensive survey of the pasts, presents, and futures of more than 6,000 students at Indiana University -- Purdue University at Indianapolis, which includes one-third of the more than 3,000 black students enrolled in the Indiana University system.

The survey by Associate Dean James R. East showed that black and white students share virtually identical goals for their academic and professional futures.

Dr. East found that 32 percent of all IUPUI undergraduates have plans for graduate school and that 33 percent of the black students plan to work toward graduate degrees.

Virtually identical percentages of the students plan to make their careers in business, the technologies, the professions, and the arts. The single significant difference in career plans is for those who are planning futures in government and public service: 20 percent of the black students want such jobs compared with 10 percent of all IUPUI students.

If the statistics of the future do not show much difference, there are still some substantial differences in the statistics of the students' pasts.

Nearly twice as many black students come from families with poverty-level incomes: 12 percent of IUPUI students come from families with incomes less than $5,000 a year; 27 percent of the black students come from such families.

Eleven percent of the IUPUI students have fathers who work at unskilled jobs; 30 percent of the black students' fathers hold unskilled jobs.

Nearly six of every 10 IUPUI students are the first in their families to go to college.

Among black students, nearly eight of every 10 are the first to work toward degrees.

More blacks believed that their high schools did not adequately prepare them for college: 12 per cent (compared with 8 per cent of all students) said their high school counselors did not point them toward college.

The statistics of the present show less significant differences between black and white students.

Black students tend to be a bit older: 16 per cent are 30 to 39 years old, compared with 10 per cent for all IUPUI students.

Most of the IUPUI students live in metropolitan Indianapolis and commute to their campuses, but nearly three times as many black students -- 21 per cent -- depend upon public transportation for their commuting.

Nearly the same percentages of black and white students (37 and 38 per cent) depend upon their jobs, or the jobs of their husbands or wives, to pay their ways through college. There are no statistical differences in their incomes of their debts.

The satisfactions -- or dissatisfactions -- with lives on campus show no racial differences. Essentially identical proportions of black and white students approved or disapproved of the quality of their courses, their access to the professors, the helpfulness of their counselors.

The statistics of the students' basic political attitudes showed some slight toward liberalism for the black students: 15 per cent described themselves as very liberal, compared with nine per cent for the entire student body; 26 per cent said, they were political moderates compared with 36 per cent of all students.

A TIER from the beautiful wedding cake of Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Anderson Sr. was removed to symbolize a very happy occasion—their 25th (silver) wedding anniversary celebrated Saturday, Sept. 2, at the Civilian Recreation Club, at Fort Benjamin Harrison. The Joneses greeted many well-wishers at this most meaningful affair. (Recorder photo by James Bures).

ter, and Mr. and Mrs. John Marsh of Niles, Mich. Mrs. Shute and Mrs. Carter shared the title of head hostesses at the affair. The Andersons celebrated their 25th (silver) wedding anniversary. (Recorder photo by James Bures).

Guests congratulate Andersons on silver wedding anniversary

The inclement weather Saturday did not mar the happiness of The Henry T. Anderson, Sr. or their guests who help celebrate the couple's 25th wedding anniversary at the Civilian Recreation Club, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

The color scheme of pink, white, and silver was carried out in the floral arrangements and decorated ivory table. The silver anniversary table attracted well-wishers' attention as they entered the room. The table was skirted with silver and bore a three-tier pink, white, and silver anniversary cake as the centerpiece. On either side were decorated sheet cakes. The table was further enhanced with silver candelabras and mint dishes. The gift table was resplendent with its centerpiece of white gladioli and carnations artistically arranged by Mr. and Mrs. "Pete" Graves of Regal Flower Shop.

The liquid refreshment table contained silver champagne fountain which flowed endlessly. Guests received their champagne glasses as souvenirs. Punch was also served to guests.

The sumptuous buffet prepared by the host was delectable and exhibited his capabilities as a caterer. The centerpiece was pink carnations, white mums, and wisteria sent by Mrs. Vernie Newcomb. Other floral arrangements of white chrysanthemums, pink and white pom-pons, pink carnations, and sweetpeas from Vernetta's Flower Shop complimented the room.

Mrs. Anderson was attractively gowned in a white crepe dress banded with silver braid from the neckline to the hem of the gown. The outfit was accented with a white orchid from her husband. Sharing the receiving line with the honorees were her mother, Mrs. Amelia Hampton, and their three children, Henry T. Jr., Denise, and Eugene.

Charming hostesses co-chairmen were Mrs. Audrey Carter and Mrs. Clarence Shute. Delightful hostesses were Mrs. William Harrison, John Hannah Sr., Dwight Carter Sr., Russell Paker Sr.,

Lucius Slay, Ernest Wilkins, James McCellan, Clara Woolridge, Allen Grundy Sr., Louis Thomas, and Cecil Ross, and Misses Lena Ellis, Mattie Ellis, Barbara Hannah, and Dorothy Maholland.

Wig-cosmetic show slated at 'Today's Lady,' a new shop

BY PAT STEWART

What could become the "fashion center of Indianapolis" will be reviewed by the general public Sunday, Sept. 10, as guests begin arriving at 1 p.m. for a wig and cosmetic show at the ultra-modern and new "Today's Lady" beauty shop operated by "Mr. Odis" (Odis Bledsoe) at 3932 N. Illinois.

This 34-year-old adventurous bachelor is known by many ladies as the very debonaire consultant for Libra Products, made expressly for black women and sold in local department stores.

Assisting "Mr. Odis," who is a make-up artist, at Sunday's show will be his capable staff consisting of six beauticians, a receptionist and a wig stylist.

"Today's Lady" is housed in a recently decorated building featuring a silver ceiling, purple carpeting, luscious flowing off-white drapes "reflecting" wall covering, gold and blue velvet chairs within each of seven stations, along with large mirrors trimmed in gold. Fourteen hair dryers are placed ovally in the center of the floor.

"I knew what I wanted in decorating and no interior decorator seemed to think it could be done, so I did it myself assisted by some friends," Mr. Bledsoe said of his shop decor.

"Today's Lady" will not only be the fashion center for high fashion hair designs, but will also be "the" spot for women concerned with make-up and skin care. The proprietor has been described as a "master make-up artist."

He has displayed his ability on television shows, make-up workshops throughout the country while travelling for Libra, in a film, and most memorable beautifying the faces of the lovely contestants in the 1971 "Miss Black America Pageant."

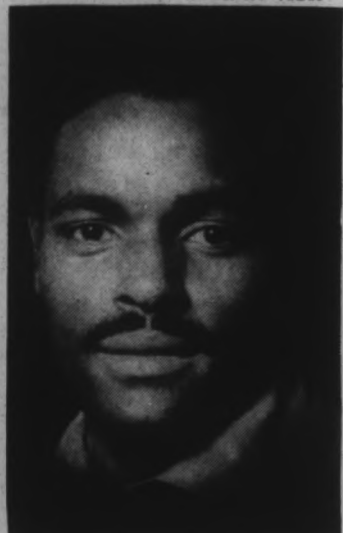

Weddings and other events where looking pretty is a must for ladies will be a specialty of "Today's Lady," since the staff can apply the make-up along with fashionable wigs if desired. By the way, the shop will also sell all type wigs and Libra Products. "Mr. Odis" will remain a consultant for Libra, and he recalls making up beauties for the "Miss Texas World Beauty Pageant."

The staff is also competent in giving facial massages, manicuring, treating acne in teenagers and adults, and having make-up and eyelash classes if the demand is great enough.

"Mr. Odis" is a graduate of the Bon Ton Beauty School of Denver, Col., and holds beautiful licenses in the states of California, Tennessee, and Indiana. He attended Indiana University Extension and holds a two-year college certificate.

He joined Libra in 1968 when the products were in the planning stages and had not been marketed. One week he visited ed 38 different cities. He has also been to Nassau, Bahamas; St. Croix, Virgin Islands, and Antigua Bay, Caribbean Islands.

'MR. ODIS' (BLEDISOE)

"Today's Lady" will be a high class beauty center. It is air-conditioned and a glass panel separates the booths. There are three purification systems which will keep the air clean and fresh smelling. Three black shampoo bowls are available for customers who will be seated in blue shampoo chairs.

"Mr. Odis," a native of Indianapolis, has 15 years in the beauty profession. He admits that his northside shop is the result of a lot of effort and "several positive thinking people."

"This will be a complete beauty service. We prefer appointments, but someone will serve customers coming in at any time. It is hoped that one-day service will be offered for wig styling. Pick-up and delivery service is contemplated."

"Mr. Odis" is known for addressing women's groups. His eyes sparkled as he spoke of "Today's Lady" and in conclusion he pointed out he was a sergeant and was stationed in Japan and Korea with the U.S. Air Force. He holds a black belt in judo. Visit "Today's Lady" Sunday. See Ad on page four.

Both were beautifully decorated. These showed some of the first methods used while Miss Hughley traveled with the group.

Rebecca Campbell is the most suprised at party

"Happy Birthday Becky" was displayed on the well-known "Great Sign" of the Holiday Inn Midtown Sunday, Aug. 20, when Mrs. Rebecca Campbell enjoyed a surprise birthday dinner.

Mrs. Campbell, whose family discusses everything, is wondering how her two daughters, Mrs. J. P. Morgan of East St. Louis, Ill., and Mrs. Raymond Cutler of Denver, Colo., and her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin T. Kennedy of Indianapolis, managed to put together such an elaborate affair without her knowledge.

There were 50 guests present including the honoree's 82-year-old father, Rev. Elijah Kennedy of East St. Louis.

Mrs. Campbell is the great-grandmother who was one of the very special graduates of Day Adult High School in May of 1970. She is a licensed practical nurse, a member of the Nurses Professional Registry and a volunteer in the health department of Operation Late Start Senior Citizens Program of CAAP.

Educational opportunities for enlisted women set

The United States Navy is highlighting advanced educational opportunities for enlisted women in the fields of science, dietetics and nursing. These college degree programs will open the door for professional careers and commissions to those who qualify.

The specific programs are the Navy Enlisted Scientific Education Program (NESEP), the Navy Enlisted Dietetic Education Program (NEDEP), and the Navy Enlisted Nursing Education Program (NENEP).

NESEP offers up to four years of uninterrupted education at one of the 21 participating civilian universities. After completing all requirements, including 10 weeks of Officer Candidate School during the summer before the senior year, candidates receive baccalaureate degrees in one of 18 major fields of science, mathematics or engineering. They are then commissioned ensigns in the Regular Navy.

NEDEP offers up to three years of college, a degree in medical dietetics, and a commission in the Medical Service Corps. The length of the course depends upon the applicant's prior college work. Participating universities are selected by the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery (BuMed).

A career in nursing is obtainable through NENEP. This four-year program, in a university chosen by BuMed, leads to a degree in nursing and a commission in the Nurse Corps, Naval Reserve. The Navy is trying to generate increased female participation in these rewarding programs. The basic requirements for NESEP, NEDEP and NENEP are intelligence, ambition and aptitude. Anyone with the above requirements and an interest in these special areas is encouraged to contact her nearest Navy Recruiter for further details.

She hopes maybe some of her five sisters will decide to follow in her footsteps as the Women's Army Corps increases its number of personnel and opens job opportunities in the women's phase of the new Volunteer Army organization.

Home decoration consultant recognized for achievement

DIGHTON, Mass.,—Doris Brewer, the wife of an Army recruiter, of 1009C Drum Drive, Fort Harrison, Ind., has won recognition for her achievements as a consultant who advises women in decorating their homes.

Mrs. Brewer has been promoted to a key organizational level in Princess House, Inc., a national company that specializes in the distribution of china, crystal, flatware and decorator accessories.

Mrs. Adelaide Rossi, vice president in charge of sales for Princess House, with headquarters in Dighton, said that Mrs. Brewer, in her new post as a Unit Organizer, would recruit and train decorator consultants to show the company's merchandise at parties in private homes.

A native of Indianapolis, Mrs. Brewer worked as a department store clerk and sold cosmetics before joining Princess House last January at the suggestion of a friend who was a consultant in New York. She and her husband, Raymond, have three sons, aged 9, 10, and 14.

Princess House, one of the nation's fastest-growing direct-selling companies, enjoyed a 62 per cent sales increase in 1971 to reach an annual volume of nearly $10,000,000. Through its more than 4,000 representatives, who work as independent contractors, the company's sales so far this year have forged 73 per cent ahead of last year.

The company recently dedicated a headquarters building in North Dighton, where it has purchased a 40-acre tract to enable continued expansion keeping pace with sales growth. Early this year it acquired the Louie Glass Company in Weston, W. Va., to insure adequate supplies of crystal, and it recently began selling a specially-designed Princess House line of china made by the Spode organization. Amy Vanderbilt, the author of the best-selling "Amy Vanderbilt's Etiquette," is a special adviser to Princess House. The company recently brought out a special Princess House edition of her book, with an introduction written by her and including a section devoted to the Princess House line.

GOSS—In loving memory of MADELINE MCCULLEY GOSS who passed Sept. 5, 1971. The year since she's been gone just hasn't been the same. And we miss her more than words and pen can ever tell. There's a sadness that comes over us even just to call her name. Ever since we said our last farewell. Yet, through the sadness we can smile as o'er life's path we tread. For we have the joy of knowing she was at peace with God. —Leroy Goss, Husband, Children, Grandchildren, Sisters and Nephews

Ex-Pacer center Reggie Harding victim of Detroit street slaying

(SPECIAL TO THE RECORDER)

DETROIT,-----
Reggie Harding, the seven-foot former basketball star who played a portion of the 1967 season with the Indiana Pacers of the American Basketball Association, died Saturday in a Detroit hospital after being shot in the head following an argument.

Detroit homicide detectives said Tuesday that they would seek a federal fugitive warrant for Carl Scott of Detroit. Scott and Harding allegedly became involved in an argument Friday night and slaps were exchanged. Scott left and returned 20 minutes later and fired two bullets into Harding's head.

A spokesman for Detroit General Hospital said Harding, 30, died at 1:30 p.m. (EST), some 16 hours after he was shot.

Harding made as many headlines in escapades with the law as he had on the basketball courts.

He had been rated as one of the greatest basketball stars ever to come out of Detroit.

He was drafted by the Detroit Pistons of the National Basketball Association out of high school, but the NBA ruled him ineligible for one year.

He was a member of the Pistons for two years, but was suspended for conduct unbecoming an NBA player.

After being reinstated he played with the Pistons for two years until the early portion of the 1967 season when he was traded to the Chicago Bulls.

Race and racism in East Africa

Over the past century, from the great crowded centers of India and China, there has been a steady outward drift of emigrants. They sought their opportunities in the less highly developed, or less heavily populated lands of Asia and Africa. Often they came as laborers, but quickly became tradesmen, merchants and technicians. Shopkeepers are not always popular with their customers, and when the differences of economic class are accentuated by differences of race and custom, they become a very vulnerable target.

In East Africa, over the past decade, a great many of the Asians have confronted the newly independent states by retaining their allegiances to the old colonial powers. Very often they have held onto their British passports, rather than taking citizenship in these countries where their families have lived for perhaps three generations.

Uganda, where the expulsion of the Asian minority will shortly create great suffering, is ruled by a demagogic and eccentric man. Like others who sought to shore up unstable governments, he has now resorted to the most flagrant racism. It is a familiar pattern. The melancholy drama now going forward in Uganda has been played many times over in the past ten years, with varying degrees of cruelty, in countries all the way from Africa to Burma and Indochina. The Asians of East Africa can doubtless be faulted for a failure of political wisdom. The existence of a large and comparatively prosperous class of businessmen in permanent residence, but maintaining foreign citizenship, might give concern to countries much larger and more confident than Uganda. But if the Ugandan Asians have erred they are now paying an extremely harsh price for it.

About 90,000 of Uganda's 9 million people are Asians, and three fourths of the Asians are not citizens. Currently Gen. Amin says that only the non-citizens must go, but he intends to run the rest through a process of verification of status that seems likely to leave a large number of them stateless. The British government is prepared to admit those with British passports, of which there are some 50,000. But the welcome even in Britain will be far from unanimous. Previous waves of Asian immigration have brought the race issue to British domestic politics, and elements in both parties are now bitterly protesting this addition to the Asian minority. Some of the refugees will go to India. Canada has offered to take about 5000. The United States offers sympathy but its visa regulations, stressing professional and technical training, make it unlikely that more than perhaps 100 will actually be admitted. While the regulations can be waived, as a practical matter a waiver requires a degree of public pressure here that is altogether unlikely in this case. There is no lobby for the Asians.

Many of the departing Asians own houses and businesses, some of them substantial. Gen. Amin has promised compensation, but the promise is undercut by the obvious fact that Uganda does not begin to have the resources to pay market value. It looks as though the expulsions will be accompanied by one degree or another of confiscation.

The purpose of the expulsion is, as Gen. Amin puts it, to enable Africans to take over their own economy. Taking over an economy requires, unfortunately, a good deal more than walking into empty offices and shops. No economy can lose so large a part of its commercial class without going into decline. In Uganda, the first effect of the expulsions seems unlikely to be a sharp rise in unemployment.

Housing compromise a failure

BY VERNON E. JORDAN JR.,
Executive Director
National Urban League

A low-income housing project planned for the Forest Hills section of New York City has become the most controversial such project in the country, and an indication of the way the wind is blowing in the housing field.

The project, three 24-story buildings planned to house 40 families, was announced, would its way through red tape, and was finally approved. Once workmen started digging its foundations, neighborhood extremists applied political pressures that led to the appointment of a mediator, Mario Cuomo, who was to come up with a compromise solution.

His compromise is disastrous. The building would be cut to 12 stories each, meaning that 420 poor families, now locked into slum housing, would be denied the right to clean, decent apartments. Further, the per-unit cost would rise sharply, and the city already strapped for funds, would have to pick up part of the tab whereas the original project would have been funded by the federal government in its entirety.

Mayor Lindsay accepted the compromise solution "reluctantly," but no one else seems satisfied. The city's Housing Authority Chairman, Simeon Golar, condemned the proposal and suggested instead that the full project go ahead, with one of the buildings set aside for middle-income families, and the lost low-income housing replaced by smaller projects in Queens. The spokesman for the neighborhood protesters called the compromise "totally unacceptable."

But what is "totally unacceptable" is the reasoning behind the compromise plan and the refusal of localities to provide decent housing opportunities for the poor.

The mediator reasoned that the community opposed the project because it fears crime and vandalism. What kind of leadership is it that gives in to irrationality like that? How can it allow the further spread of such slanders against people striving to better themselves by escaping the slums? And what crime and vandalism does the community expect from the elderly who will occupy the units in the project set aside for them?

He also said that if the project goes through as planned, people will abandon middle-class Forest Hills. That's a self-fulfilling prophecy that encourages the hysteria of the community's extremists instead of combating it. I find it hard to believe that this particular neighborhood is so lacking in basic community strengths and institutions that the addition of several hundred low-income families will lead to wholesale departures.

"The problem is that only extremists are heard," said the mediator. But the real problem is that only extremists have been listened to. Moderates have spoken out, but their call for reason has been lost in the shuffle of city officials to appease the extremists.

Forest Hills demonstrates that solutions for the housing problems of the poor must go beyond local provincialism. So long as local officials, even self-styled liberal ones as in New York, have sole control over low-income housing sites, anti-black pressures will prevail. The federal government's housing policies have often been criticized, but in this instance federal officials stood by the project while local politicians hacked it to death.

Lost in the charade over Forest Hills is the basic question: Where do poor people who need decent housing go? That's a question that has to be answered on a national scale. New York's answer seems to be: "let them stay in slums." That answer, like the compromise that threatens to kill the project, is totally unacceptable.

Nixon using hate for bait A La Hitler

It has been easy to follow the strategy so far of the Nixon campaign to retain the presidency. There is no plan to discuss the real issues just as there was none at the puppet show called the Republican National Convention held recently in Miami Beach.

It is apparent that the Nixon-Agnew plan calls for nothing more complicated than what was used by the late Adolf Hitler to bend the German people to his will—the appeal to the endemic hatreds which have been around since time immemorial. Hitler had the Jews to use as bait to capture the allegiance of the majority of the German people. Richard Nixon has the black minority to use as bait to get the die hard racists, the scared middle class Wasp and the ethnic whites.

The Nixon campaign differs from that of his late Nazi counterpart in the Hitler could appeal openly to the latent anti-Semitism of the citizens of the Third Reich without shame. Mr. Nixon is operating in a climate where it is anachronistic to use racial epithets. His appeals to the anti-Negro prejudices of the woolhat and the hyphenated Americans has to be done subtly—by the use of codes which are easily understood by even the most ignorant of the electorate.

The chief code word is that of "busing," which in reality has nothing to do with the familiar and commonly accepted means of transportation. It means the total rejection of racial integration as a means of enabling the nation's schools to provide the best possible education to every American child without regard to the pigmentation of his skin or the size of his family income.

The appeal to the national ethnic groups came at a time when, tired of the slow process by which they were being fused in the mythical melting pot, they were beginning to organize protests as in the black civil rights revolution. What he offers them is not full integration into the warp and woof of the American political and economic fabric but a share in the job of keeping the black American permanently at the bottom of the social, economic and political ladder.

Nixon and Agnew know, as do the white ethnic groups, that the Negro is at the end of the longest line in the world and they subtly promise them that they can always be assured of getting in the line ahead of the sepi minority.

The job of persuading many of the hyphenates is not too difficult as many of them have long since adopted the white-majority attitudes toward black Americans as a means of convincing the Wasps that they want to join them.

Negroes who have lived in communities having Polish American majorities have long recognized that these second and third generation Americans are often more addicted to Negrophobia than many Wasp groups, and that race hatred American style seems to be the underlying philosophy of Polish American organizations.

Indications of the Nixon appeal to the white ethnics was the paucity of black delegates and alternates to the Republican Stockholders meeting in Miami Beach and the minor roles assigned to them.

The presence of Sammy Davis, Junior, who sing "Dixie" and hugged Richard Nixon, may have fooled a few dozen blacks but not for long.

The statement by The Republican Party Co-Chairperson, Anne Armstrong, at a gathering of the small coterie of blacks at the so-called convention that the party was "awfully glad your ancestors decided to leave that old country (Africa) and come to this new country and make it a better place for all of us," besides being a master distortion of both history and geography, was as appealing to blacks as a parade of undertakers would be to a dying man.

And to make the intentions of the campaign plans clearer, Nixon never misses an opportunity to confirm his white supremacy doctrine. He could not refrain even in his Labor Day message from reaffirming his opposition to busing.

So it is from this point in the 1972 presidential campaign Mr. Nixon has made it "perfectly clear" that he is appealing to the white ethnic vote not for the purpose of building a new and viable Republican Party but for the sole purpose of winning the election, and winning the election is the name of the game.

Chief Buthelezi makes sure there is a dialogue in South Africa

(Chief Gatsha Buthelezi has used his office as Chief Executive of the Zululand Territorial Authority to make his people's views on apartheid clear to Pretoria.)

BY SOUTH AFRICAN CORRESPONDENTS

NAIROBI, Kenya. —

Black Africa has said emphatically that the South African Government must begin its "dialogue" with black Africans within its borders, before its overtures to the rest of Africa can be heard. So far as Chief Gatsha Buthelezi, Chief Executive of the Zululand Territorial Authority, is concerned, that first dialogue has already begun.

Since the Territorial Authority was created in 1970, Chief Buthelezi has used the platform it provides to press his own views about apartheid on the South African Government. Certainly, he has met with Prime Minister Johannes Vorster, a meeting which he described as "a milestone in the relations between our various people." But the claims he makes for his people reach the rulers of South Africa more often through the press than from the public platform.

At the meeting with the Prime Minister, Chief Buthelezi is reported to have said that although he had certain reservations about the government's policy of separate development, he would give the Prime Minister the fullest cooperation in carrying it out. In practice, his "full cooperation" has included demands for more land, more money and more power for the Zulu "Bantustan," which this year gets a Legislative Assembly like that of the first Bantustan, the Transkei.

As one commentator put it, "He became the pace-setter for the Bantustans — the embodiment of what the Pretoria Government had always feared, namely, that a traditional African Leader would arise who would put apartheid to the test by making demands for his Bantustans which the Government could not meet." Chief Buthelezi's strategy is not the "black apartheid" advocated by Chief George Matanzima of the Transkei, which Buthelezi has characterized as "destroying one evil by employing another evil." The Zulu Chief, whose family have traditionally served the Zulu Kings as Prime Ministers or counselors, is a subtle diplomat, who constantly reminds the South African Nationalist Party that the Afrikaners were once an oppressed people.

He spoke recently at Stellenbosch University, one of the ideological centers of the Afrikaner nation, and received a standing ovation from the students at the end of the evening. He told his audience that he had come to Stellenbosch at a time when the Afrikaner people had reached Africa.

"Today it can be truthfully said that they are masters not only of their own destiny, but also of destinies of other peoples of South Africa, both white and black."

Chief Buthelezi then recalled that the Afrikaners, like his own people, were victims of colonializations for a very long time. "But whereas the Afrikaners have finally shaken off the shackles of colonialism, my people still feel shackled, in so far as blacks have had no real voice in the running of the affairs in South Africa for scores of years."

He recalled the history of the Zulu Wars, and the fact that Africans were never asked if they wanted to be part of the Union of 1910 or whether they agreed with the Statute of Westminster of 1931 which made South Africa autonomous. "The voice of the blacks, just like the voice of the Afrikaners, had been ignored."

He went on to remind his Afrikaner audience of the 'blood-stained beacons' in their history, using General Smuts' phrase, and he hoped 'that they would understand that black also had their blood-stained beacons.'

"The blacks hope the Afrikaners who are governing South Africa at present will appreciate that many black leaders such as Robert Sobukwe and Albert Lutuli rose for the same reasons as General Hetzog and President Steyn."

Having pointed the similarities between the history of his own people and that of his audience, Chief Buthelezi went on to stress the similarity of their needs.

"When we are, therefore, promised self-government, it must be clear that we do not expect a sham self-government but the real thing. If the majority of whites have now decided, solo, to set up blacks on separate states, we have no means to resist it, even had we wanted to. But the great test is the extent to which this is meant."

If it was meant, said Chief Buthelezi, then he could not be accused of asking for too much too soon. He assumed that policy was an acknowledgement of the fact that every people on earth has "the right to bread and liberty."

"One of the facts which the Afrikaners who are wielding power have to face is the fact that we have also contributed towards the production of the wealth of South Africa. We will therefore not be eager to receive independence if it will be in the spirit of, 'Since you want independence, take it and starve!'" giving free and compulsory education; equipping blacks with technical skills; and lastly adding more lands to the existing 'homelands'.

Many of his people, he said, were optimistic that the Afrikaners would measure up to these challenges.

He ended by referring to the Western Christian tradition which the white Voortrekker pioneers brought to South Africa.

"The polarization between extreme wealth and extreme poverty in South Africa does not help my people, fairly new comers to your Christian faith, to understand what your Christian tradition means. Through history, extreme wealth tends to be associated in their minds with whites and extreme poverty with blacks. The more our people get educated, the more disillusioned they get about the feasibility of applying your Christian tradition in practical terms, in a meaningful way, to their lives in South Africa."

Chief Buthelezi said that he had often thought that Dr. Verwoerd, the last Prime Minister of South Africa, had not chosen the words "good neighborliness" by accident when seeking to describe the policy of separate development. And he found it significant that Christ used those words to sum up, in simple terms, the meaning of Christianity, and illustrated it by the parable of the Good Samaritan.

"This parable seems to me to have been well-tailored by Our Lord for South Africa," reflected Chief Buthelezi. Would Dr. Verwoerd's use of the words become truthfully meaningful in South Africa?

"On this hinges the whole question of whether we will lose our souls in South Africa. Not just your people, but mine, even if only in a slightly different sense."

The Stellenbosch students took up the dialogue eagerly, with searching questions which brought from Chief Buthelezi equally thoughtful answers. The Government of South Africa, of course, did not respond to the speech. But there is no doubt that it was heard in Pretoria.

Flip Wilson has a squad of real estate agents searching all over the Golden West for a large ranch with plenty of unpolluted, unspoiled acreage—that's within "commuting distance" of Hollywood by plane. The wealthy Wilson also has been quietly pricing private jets these days, which is one way to solve that "commuting" problem. A certain very important TV star has all his friends worried and urging him to give up his romance with a very much married socialite. Everybody in Washington and New York knows about the affair and that includes her husband and his wife—who has been through it all before.

One of the funniest star impersonation stories to come along in years involved the "son" of "Sandford and Son" Demond Wilson, who as everyone knows who watches that hit NBC series, is young, tall and black. The fellow who chose to pass himself off as Demond is middle-aged, stocky and white! Seems that he spread the story that while he is white in real life, he is made up as a black for his television work.

Carroll O'Connor has just signed a very profitable (for him) contract for "All In The Family".... Though O'Connor's not greedy, he does have a sense of his own worth....

And the producers admit they wouldn't have a show without Carroll in the role of "Archie".... How right they are!... Johnny Carson and Dyan Cannon are dating, taking up in Hollywood where they left off in New York City.... Rumor has it that David Cassidy wants out of his TV series, "The Partridge Family." It seems he could be making more loot from personal appearances than he could from the show.... After his "Family Affair" TV series folded, Brian Keith swore that he'd never work with kids again. But that's exactly what he's doing in his new series, "The Little People." Being filmed in Hawaii....

There is such a thing as an automatic hit on television, CBS-TV's new half-hour situation comedy, "Bridget Loves Bernie," is undoubtedly the one. Aside from having a cute format and some attractive stars going for it, the show is in the enviable position of occupying the 8:30-9 p.m. time slot Saturday nights. The only thing that makes that special is that it follows the block-buster, the nation's number one comedy show, "All In The Family." Automatic hits have been made by less. It has been said that CBS could schedule a race between 500 year old tortoises in that position and still have a hit. "BAB" concerns the love, and eventual marriage,

"Nigger Charlie" signs with We Produce Records

MEMPHIS,---- Jo Bridges, executive vice president of We Produce Records, Inc. (distributed by the Stax Organization), announced today the signing of actor Fred Williamson to an exclusive artist contract. Williamson, star of the movie "The Legend of Nigger Charlie," recently flew to Memphis to attend a special 1971 Pulitzer Prize-winning play, "No Place to Be Somebody." Parks, son of the famed director-photographer and a distinguished photographer in his own right, makes his film-directing debut with "Superfly," a drama of the Harlem underworld written by Phillip Fenty.

The music for "Superfly" was composed and arranged by Curtis Mayfield and the film features a guest appearance by the Curtis Mayfield Experience.

"Superfly" is another way of saying "supercool."

reception in his honor given by We Produce.

Believe Me... When I Tell You

By BOB WOMACK SR.

THE DUKE IN CONCERT: Edward Kennedy Ellington better known as "Duke" Ellington, composer; bandleader and jazz musician will invade Butler University's Clowes Hall along with his international known orchestra for a concert on Sunday Sept. 24, at 7:30 p.m. You name it and he's done it. Network broadcasts; annual concerts at Carnegie Hall; performances at the Metropolitan Opera House; appearances at many jazz festivals; tours of Europe and most of the world. In one of his tours, he also starred Ella Fitzgerald, the "Lady of Song." It was one of the most successful jazz shows ever to tour Europe. In Leningrad, he received high praise from critics for helping the Soviet people "understand the soul of the Negro people."

In 1966, Ellington wrote a "sort of cross between a gospel song and a spiritual." He was asked by a priest to give a concert of the sacred music in Christ Church Cathedral in San Francisco. He thought it "might blow the walls" but it proved to be an uplifting experience for the audience and led to other such concerts. For his sacred music, he uses "varying degrees of fire and brimstone."

"No jazzed up masses but the words of the gospels as they can be understood set to our music."

In 1969, on his 70th birthday, the Duke was guest of honor at a black-tie dinner in the White House, where his father once served as a butler. President Nixon expressed the sentiments of the nation when he awarded him the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian medal.

Among many of his numbers which he composed are "Solitude," "Mood Indigo," "Sophisticated Lady," "Take The A Train," and a great many more which we do not have the space to dig including numerous movie scores.

Be sure to see one of the top Soul orchestras, if not, the best in the world in concert. It is a very rare treat to dig the one and only, Duke Ellington and Crew in person... Believe Me!

Mrs. DORIS G. STEPP, prominent civic leader and the winner of the 1971, Greyhound Lines Inc., Indianapolis Recorder "Woman of the Year," award for her most outstanding social work here. Especially, in regards to the famous Mary Jewell Kidney Fund where thousands of dollars was raised in order to buy Mrs. Jewell, mother of nine children, a kidney dialysis machine. Also an expensive water softener which was necessary in operating the machine.

As, some of the readers will recall a few columns back, we reported that Mrs. Stepp was a patient in the Marion County General Hospital. However, after her release and a brief stay at home, other medical complications set in.

Currently, she is confined to the Intensive Care Unit of the Methodist Hospital. Only the immediate family can visit her... We are wishing Mrs. Stepp a very, very, speedy recovery.

THE FAMILY continues to look for a dependable middle-aged single lady to work as a housekeeper for my mother. Room and board is included for the right person. This just might turn out to be a lifetime position. For an interview write to Yours truly, Incare-of-the-Recorder Theatrical Dept., 518 Indiana Ave... Please, no phone calls... Thanks.

MAIL BAG:.. Recently, we received a very nice card from our "main-man," Ol' Buddy William Cooke, Sr., who was on vacation down in the Grand Ole Opry Country namely Nashville, Tenn. He stated that he was having a ball enjoying himself at a new club called the JAIL. The spot also sports a lock-up, ect... No comment... (smile).

FAMOUS QUOTES:.. Redd Foxx, actor for more than 30 years on the reactions of the Sanford and Son television show: "People everywhere have been waving hello to me. Kids on the streets. People in the market. The thing's been phenomenal. It showed a lot of people watched. Sometimes you get a good feeling about what you're doing. We have so much freedom in this kind of show. We have a chance to even censor things ourselves that we think might be offensive to blacks and whites. We, Demond and I, can insert things we feel are rights."

I stayed off television a long time because I felt things weren't honest. We try to humanize everything. We want to give a half hour of entertainment—and honesty through our characters. I think many families of all races can identify with us and our feelings."

EDITOR'S NOTE:.. "Sanford and Son," as a father and son junk-dealing team thus joins the long-rated "Ironside" among the current television attractions featuring themes and original music by Soul Brother Quincy Jones. Another brother Oliver Nelson joins Jones in providing original music for "Ironside," and Nelson's work is also heard on NBC's "Night Gallery" and ABC's "Longstreet."

Friend CANTRELL MITZES continues to do his thing. The ex-musician is considered to be one of the top salesmen at the Medias Bros. Men's Shop located on the "Stem." Why not, dig him when in need of something special in men's wear?

IVAN DIXON, former long-time co-star of the "Hogan's Heroes" TV series is director of the JDF-B production for 20th Century-Fox release, "Trouble Man." His chief cameraman on the movie set is Joe Wilcots. The first of his race to hold such a position in either the Hollywood or New York locals of the cameramen's union. For your information, there are only 18 black assistant cameramen in the film industry.

Shaft scores big dollars

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Shaft's Big Score!" has raked in a rousing $385,828 during the first five days of showcase engagements in 42 metropolitan New York City theatres, it was announced today (15) by Bill Madden, vice-president for domestic sales.

The Stirling Silliphant-Roger Lewis Production, currently on the road to rivaling the phenomenal success of MGM's original "Shaft" motion picture, stars Richard Roundtree and co-stars Moses Gunn in a suspense-drama written by Ernest Tidyman based upon characters he created. Gordon Parks directed the new film and wrote the music. Roger Lewis and Ernest Tidyman produced.

we experienced."
"This ball club drew less than one percent of blacks last year," added Coach Babe McCarthy. "It's been shown that the black fans won't support a black ball club that plays .500 basketball. When we got Netolicky, the phones started ringing."
The Chaps don't necessarily have Netolicky yet, however. He was purchased from the Indiana Pacers this summer and was given a contract by Dallas in excess of $70,000 annually. But Netolicky filed suit against the Pacers, contending his no-trade clause. "I hope we've got Netolicky," Geary said. "He's an established big man and you can't win without one."

When the Pittsburgh franchise folded after the 1971-72 season, the Chaps picked up Brisker, a veteran forward with a 29-point scoring average. But Brisker was labeled a troublemaker and was allowed to buy his contract. He was immediately signed by the NBA Seattle Supersonics. Freeman, the Chaps' leading scorer the last year with a 24-point average, asked for a $500,000 contract for three years, pricing himself out of the Chaps' financial means, despite the fact that the club claims to have offered LaRue Martin, their No. 1 draft choice who signed with Portland of the NBA, close to $800,000 last year.

The Chaps, who thought Freeman was a good buy two years ago, said he never fulfilled their expectations, and sold him to Indiana.

Bob Briner, the club's executive vice-president, said Freeman had a high rate of absenteeism because of injuries. "Only one player on the team, (Gene) Phillips, is regarded as a bona-fide drawing card in Dallas," Briner said.

McCarthy said Sketter Swift another white guard picked up from Pittsburgh, and Joe Hamilton, a black Chaps' reserve, would also challenge for the starting position.

them from the sport.

During the 1950s, Ashe recalls, black athletes were excelling in boxing, football, baseball, but there were no first-rate black tennis players. The reason: tennis remained "the most segregated of sports." Striving to end that situation, Dr. Johnson maintained a "Junior Development Program" for black players. Periodically he'd enter one of the outstanding youths in a white tournament, only to be turned down without explanation.

"At times I got discouraged and wanted to quite tennis," Ashe writes, "but Dr. Johnson pointed out that one quality of a champion is the ability to endure."

Finally, in 1954, a breakthrough came. Dr. Johnson and his son Robert applied to play in the National Father-Son Clay Court Doubles championship matches in Atlanta, Ga. Rejected by match officials, Dr. Johnson got on the phone to the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association, pointing out that the matches were being played on courts built with public funds--not just white taxpayers' money. The Johnsons were allowed to play.

Other breakthroughs followed. One was the emergence of a Johnson-coached black girl, Althea Gibson, as the world's finest woman tennis player. Another was provided by Ashe himself, who made the U.S. Davis Cup team in 1963.

"Of course tennis is only a game," Ashe writes. But to Dr. Walter Johnson, it was also a "means of getting an education, of bringing people together in fun and comradeship, of instilling black pride. And certainly he, more than anyone, opened public tennis courts to everyone regardless of race."

Johnson, fighting in the middleweight division, was in complete control of his fight from start to finish. He used Jarner as a punching bag most of the way and was given the decision on votes of 60-55, 60-54, 60-55, 60-56, and 60-56.

His first fight since Aug. 5 brought him his 58th victory in 62 bouts. He is one of only four American boxers still in contention for the gold.

Bobick's defeat was the first for an American heavyweight since the 1960 Olympics. Joe Frazier, current world heavyweight champion, won the title in Tokyo in 1964 and George Foreman in 1968 at Mexico City. Muhammad Ali won the title in 1960.

Bobick had won 62 fights in a row.

Harding then signed a contract with the Indiana Pacers and played well until he began missing practices and games which resulted in a suspension before the 1967 playoffs.

He has had numerous brushes with the law ever since a 1959 arrest for theft. He was not convicted on that charge. He admitted to a $100-a day narcotics habit during a 1969 prison stay.

Quarterback Craig Blackford hit Joe Wynns on a 28-yard scoring pass and Al Moore crashed through for a 29-yard scoring run. Indiana's defense got into the scoring act when defensive back Terry Hoepfner raced 41 yards with an intercepted pass.

Moore scored again in the fourth when Don Kelpert hit him with a four-yarder. Elrod Turner closed out Indiana's scoring on a 1-yard plunge.

Insurance company president is head of GOP's committee

A new group life insurance plan for ministers and their families were recently announced by Mark Batties, director of the Patton Funeral Home.

The plans are being handled by a professional group insurance agency with headquarters in Indianapolis. The plans, which have been endorsed by several prominent ministers, are also available to lay members or anyone who may be interested.

Mr. Batties told of the plans during the Indiana State Baptist Convention at Kokomo. They greatly provide for present and future ministers and could well be considered a "fringe benefit" as well as a much needed security. The premiums would be paid for by the church.

"I'm sure you will join me in realizing that in future years, we cannot afford to live from Social Security benefits alone. Therefore, we must prepare for tomorrow and offer our ministers and their families this type of security," Mr. Batties told the ministers.

Baptist convention leaders endorsing the proposals were Dr. F. Benjamin Davis, president; Rev. Lloyd Burton, Rev. James R. Bradley Sr., and Dr. John T. Highbaugh.

Mr. Batties will speak about the plans to persons interested. For more information, contact him at Patton Funeral Home.

Theater Notes

BY GARY EVANS

Caution: So-called 'Black' movies may be hazardous to mental health

(EDITOR'S NOTES: Bro. Richard Bailey, this week's columnist, is a graduate of Crispus Attucks High School and the University of California at Los Angeles, majoring in drama. He has also completed graduate work at Julliard in New York. A former newscaster for WTLC and WIBC radio stations here in the city, Bro. Bailey has written several plays and books of poetry. His latest accomplishment was the production of "Death is a Nickle Bag." Currently organizing an independent school liberation movement known as "The Black House," Bro. Bailey is writing free lance.)

By BRO. RICHARD BAILEY

For all those who would trouble themselves to read this column, let me start off by revealing a fact of which you may or may not be aware. Black Theater is damn near dead in Indianapolis!

This statement is made with no reservation, and no qualifications. It's nothing but a hard fact. The amount of interested people who are doing something about this pathetic situation can be counted on one hand.

The young actors and actresses, the unknown young writers and directors, the small but talented groups who have from time to time tried to revive Black Theater here, have been pushed and shoved by the apathetic T. V. watchers, and the movie goers, almost out of town and out of existence. That's the way it is. Now, why this situation exists is a question that cannot be answered in one column. But when this writer was recently asked to contribute opinions on Black Theaters, this fact appeared as being in obvious need for concentration.

On the other hand, while the Black Theater in this city seems to be dwindling out of existence, the busy, busy, inopportunist with stars and dollar bills in their eyes, (I'm talking about the Hollywood producers, and directors, etc.) have literally flooded Indianapolis recently with a polluted deluge of so-called "black movies -- "N-e-e-e-groo m-o-o-vies" that everybody's been breaking their necks to see.

Never has the city been so loaded with lame-brain nonsense movies. Everything from black face comedy-horror, (Blacula) to slapstick, nit-wit science fiction, (The Thing With Two Heads). Movies that have no significance, no substance, no relevance, and no meaning at all have all of a sudden appeared all around us. The Hollywood Madison Avenue genius for creating images to believe in now have small black children believing that if you steal a million dollars worth of dope in a graveyard (Charleston Blue) and sell it to your own people, then you're really great. Or if you can ride a horse through the slums with a Santa Claus suit on, you're being relevant.

The truth is, that the people who are in control of the movie industry are in a powerful position to create goals and images that appear to have worth. But as it stands now, the game is "give the niggers something worthless to believe in, and you won't have to worry about them hollering about black is beautiful." That's the game. And millions of black people are paying million of dollars to have their minds raped and their brains burned out.

We are forgetting that the time for being entertained through art is over. Black art, Black theater, writing, films, etc, must reflect the need for social changes. The methods of change and the dynamic of change. Black art must reflect attitude of social upheaval in order to change this system's self-destruction course.

And a Superfly Nigger with a brand new Eldorado and a carload of prostitutes ain't got nothing to do with nothing but nothing. So why devote two and a-half hours, in living color, with images blown up 10 times larger than life trying to say nothing? Black people do not need any more anti-heroes. We do not need anymore dancing, singing, happy, laughing Toms posing as Officer Nicelys. (Charleston Blue.) A lie is a lie. And a lie transposed onto a larger than life technicolor screen is still a lie and more so.

What is being said here is that the intelligence of our people is being insulted and reduced to idocy. In a day and time when crucial problems of the utmost importance, why is that rich movie producers are spending millions of dollars, and much technical know how, telling us about the legend of a black cowboy? That is Madness. That's like Nero fiddling while Rome burns.

In a time when black people themselves are struggling hard to try and solve problems of their own disunity, and poverty, and starvation, and legal injustice in the courts and penal institutions etc. . . the Hollywood and Madison genius are making long drawn out movies about hypothetical, make-believe, fantasy stories of political power (The Man). This is the same thing as saying "all blacks are fools, and would spend $3.00 and a dime for popcorn to see anything. Even blow-by-blow account of their own destruction."

It doesn't really need to be added here, but I'll say it anyway. All these ranks and worthless two dollar rip-offs have been extremely successful at the local box offices. Consequently, the producers, the directors, the cameramen the actors and the actresses have all come out much richer while we let our minds be reduced to nothing. Looking into the bottom of a popcorn bag for what's left of our electronically destroyed brains.

To add insult to injury, the really powerful statements in films, the really right-on-time films with black about blacks, have gone completely unnoticed. Films like "Uptight", "The Final Countdown", "Ain't supposed to Die a Natural Death", "King's Men 7", "The Bear and The FBI", "Goin A Buffalo" and others are films that almost nobody here has seen or heard of. Simply because they are films of contemporary quality and show the true genius of Black creativity. They are films that really leave blacks with a strong sense of pride and a clear picture of themselves and their power and beauty.

But these works have been systematically pushed out of the way and held from the public view, because they are films of power and films we should be relating too. But the money-hungry Hollywood pushers of genocide-minded Bull---- movies that say nothing but gimme your money and your mind. . . they are the ones making sure we never get a glance at the power films we should be checking out. Think about it.

This situation is more serious than it would appear at first glance. You have to give it more thought than a little before you can see how serious it all is. Once you understand it, then you'll see what the trick is. And, you'll wake up to it.

The trick is this: The movie industry, television, radio, newspapers, magazine, books, theater, etc, all play a large part in shaping the direction of our lives. We are surrounded by the influence of these devices 24 hours a day. We cannot help but be affected by them in one way or the other. The images, the values, the messages, the concepts of life that are thrown at us from all sides, there is something we must be careful about. We must analyze and consider them for our own good, or let our minds be destroyed.

We must be careful of the lies and the false images and the wrong messages being offered to us. It is dangerous to remain gullible in the face of so many mass media devices. We must learn to vomit up from the mind, all statements made about us, that are not true to form. We must refuse the attempts made to ridicule us and our life styles. We cannot afford to have our minds drenched and raped by the powers that still pull the strings in the film making business and mass media industry. Because as I said before, the trick is over. The only thing left is for the majority of us to realize it, and act accordingly.

When that happens, the power and significance of the Black theater movement, that's sweeping the country, will reach out and grab Indianapolis and bring home the creative statements that add fire to the freedom movement. Our exposure to the best of black creative works will be on the increase instead of dwindling. Our understanding of the message of "now" will sink in and give the incentive and drive needed to change the funky situation we live in. That's what Black Theater is all about. And that's what is should be about.

Believe it or not, even tho the situation is bad now, there are a lot of together people here, who are anxious and waiting for the true power of the Black Theater Movement

ACCOUNTING for the needs of both men and machines, Commander William E. Powell Jr. checks the inventory status as Supply Officer aboard the antisubmarine warfare carrier USS INTREPID.

Indianapolis Naval officer serving aboard USS Intrepid

Navy Commander William E. Powell, Jr., of Indianapolis, is currently serving as the supply officer aboard the antisubmarine warfare carrier USS INTREPID (CVS-11) on a North Atlantic cruise.

Cdr. Powell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Powell, of Indianapolis, who are currently serving at the U. S. Embassy in Niamey, Niger.

As supply officer, he is responsible for inventory and financial management to support the ship and aircraft operations. This support includes providing provisions, retail items and other essential requirements for more than 2,700 men aboard the INTREPID.

A 1953 graduate of Shortridge High School, Cdr. Powell received his commission after completing his studies at the Naval Academy in 1959. He has also attended the Naval Supply Corps School and holds a master of business administration degree from George Washington University.

Graduation held for Model Cities Girls Club students

The first annual graduation exercises of the Model Cities Girls Club were held Sunday, with Mrs. Betty Garrett, girls guidance counselor at Shortridge and formerly at Crispus Attucks, as guest speaker.

Following the invocation by Rev. W. T. Gibson, teen club member Miss Phyllis Merriweather delivered the welcoming address. Mrs. Flo Deakyn, assistant director, introduced the speaker.

Awards were presented for courses completed during the spring and summer sessions by Mrs. Connie Bregger of the Indianapolis Power and Light Company. Recipient of awards were Mrs. E. Henderson of IUPUI, Mrs. Phyllis Cooper of the Community Health Service Station No. 1, and Mrs. Doris Hood, cosmetologist. Miss Linda Hawkins, a member of Mrs. Hood's grooming class, received a special award.

The ceremony was closed with remarks by Mrs. Pearl W. Wheeler, director, and Mrs. Ivy Malone, a member of the board of directors of the Model Cities Girls Club.

Jewish council seeks funds for rights' group

The Indianapolis Jewish Community Relations Council recently urged the administration committee of the City-County Council to provide the funds to enable the local Human Rights Commission to hire an investigator to handle an anticipated wave of sex discrimination complaints beginning next year.

Robert Schloss, speaking for the JCRC, challenged the lawmakers to "demonstrate that they take the commission seriously."

He congratulated the C-CC for giving the commission county-wide jurisdiction and increasing its substantive powers, but criticized its refusal to "allocate the funds to permit adequate staffings."

Mr. Schloss charged that the "commission has been treated like a barely tolerated stepchild of city government, resulting in low staff morale and less than maximum law enforcement," because of the "meager appropriation."

The C-CC is expected to pass an ordinance barring sex discrimination in Indianapolis. Such complaints must now be referred to state and federal agencies.

to bring the truth on home, where it counts. . .

Meanwhile, watchout for the Hollywood "black" movie maker. It's a trick. He's out to rape your mind, make idiots out of your children, and steal your last $3.00. . .

By CLEONA SCOTT

EVANSVILLE,-----
Mrs. Ophelia J. Duncan of 206 E. Walnut St., has returned home from a visit in Los Angeles, with her daughter, Mrs. Anna Mary Shane and son, Paul W. Parker, sister, Mrs. Cornelia Barnes and other relatives. Mrs. Duncan reports that month and half visit was most enjoyable and was one of the highlights of her life, because her family joined in seeing that her 80th birthday celebration was a gala affair. The affair was held at Woodley Lewis restaurant, where she met former Evansville friends and a host of Los Angeles acquaintances. It was truly a memorial occasion. Mrs. Duncan traveled to Los Angeles via Delta and Continental and returned via United and Delta Airlines. One of the largest Negro-Owned Newspapers in the West, The Los Angeles Sentinel quoted "Paul Parker really thrilled his 80-year-old Mom out at Mr. Woodley's when he entertained and celebrated her birthday--we betcha Mrs. Ophelia Duncan, will long remember this birthday in Los Angeles."

Mr. and Mrs. John Lash of 14 Bedford Ave., has as house guests the (Dulin Sisters) Bertha and Connie and son Tommy of Los Angeles, Calif. Since coming back home visiting with relatives and friends they have really had a most enjoyable time. Nothing has been left unturned in the entertainment field of making them happy. Dining has been a pleasure with Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Yarbrough, the Rev. and Mrs. Paul Dulin, Mr. and Mrs. George Duffy, Mr. and Mrs. Will Hodge, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Merritt, Mr. and Mrs. Minor, Mr. and Mrs. James Armistead, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Harris, Mrs. Eunice Alderson and Mrs. Exie Lynch. They were also dinner guests of the Florence Curry's at the famous Ponderosa Steak House. They were also entertained at the Community Service Center with a delicious turkey dinner and all the trimmings by the LaFemme Travelers. The New Hope Baptist Church Chorus and Ebenezer Church Chorus joined together with a lovely banquet. Gifts and hand-shakes were tokens to them. The leave, which began Aug. 31, enables the noted pastor to teach at the Interdenominational Theological Center in Atlanta, Ga.

The popular Gary minister led his congregation in the construction of its present church, valued at more than $700,000. Three years ago, the congregation built and became sponsors of the 200-unit low income housing development at 6500 W. 15th.

The 1,900-member congregation will remain under the administrative leadership of

Singer Isaac Haynes sponsors $100 million housing project

ST. CROIX, Virgin Islands,---

The dream of a sharecropper's son, now among the giants in the musical world, took a big step toward realization with the announcement today by singer-composer Isaac "Black Moses" Haynes that he and a group of prominent Black businessmen have undertaken the sponsorship of a $100 million housing project for low income families in the United States.

Considered the largest and most ambitious project of its kind ever initiated entirely by Black financial interests and support, the construction and development of garden apartment communities in various parts of the country will house more than 20,000 people within the next five years.

Although specific cities have not yet been finalized, Haynes indicated that he would like to see a major portion of these units in the South where his roots were nurtured.

The project utilized Section #236 and other programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). These F.H.A. subsidized rental programs encourage participation by private enterprise in providing quality housing for lower income families.

In addition, the concept that Blacks with means should come to the aid of Black people of lesser means was a key factor in the decision to provide the leadership in this program.

Haynes said, "I have chosen this particular project because it meets one of the most important needs today----housing for Black and poor people."

"I feel that this kind of program," he continued, "is an example of the more relevant economic directions that Black people, who are financially able, must take in order to seriously participate in the American democratic process. It expresses the Black American ideals of self-respect and self-reliance," he stated.

This project is viewed by the participants as one of the first major efforts of Black people in America to use the economic programs of government and private capital to fulfill the dreams of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

The $100 million dream has already taken shape. The construction of an $8 million 250-unit development in St. Croix, Virgin Islands, which was financed solely by Haynes, is completed. It is the first low income building project in the Virgin Islands under Section #236 and the first of such scope ever undertaken privately by Black financing.

The new St. Croix community has complete sports and recreational facilities for every member of the family. Several picnic areas, and a baseball field, as well as tennis, basketball and volleyball courts are part of the development. Particular attention has been given to the needs of younger children with the construction of a number of "tot lots" complete with swings, the Rev. Penn, who will occupy the pulpit once each month and direct the present staff and an interim pastor.

The theological center in Georgia is composed of eight denominations whose seminaries have been brought together. It is fully accredited, and in cooperation with Emory University in Atlanta, grants professional degrees, including doctorates. One of the participating schools is Gannon Theological Seminary, of which Rev. Penn is a graduate.

Poetess stresses importance of an education today

GARY --

The importance of an education was stressed by Poetess Nikki Giovanni during her recent trip to this city. In honor of the writer, Mayor Richard G. Hatcher proclaimed Aug. 20 as "Nikki Giovanni Day."

Mrs. Giovanni said that it is through education that a person becomes free. She admits to being thrown out of three colleges before she was graduated with honors in history from Fisk University. At 29 the writer has nearly a dozen books of poetry and essays to her credit and has been an associate professor of writing at Rutgers University. She now spends much of her time speaking to groups on college campuses.

Miss Giovanni has some words of common sense and encouragement to give these young people. She firmly believes that through education one finds joy and accepts the responsibilities which enable person to fulfill the obligations of being alive. "Without an education you are out on the streets," she said, "and people are dying there."

Coffee, tea or milk girls now riding the Greyhounds

Say "coffee, tea or milk?" and everybody looks for a young, pretty girl with wings on her shoulder.

Take four young, pretty girls and switch the wings with the Greyhound dashing dog and you have a new travel twist. Luxury bus service complete with hostesses.

Katie Barnes, Dorothy McClendon, Barbara Stokes and Sheila Tarbell are hostesses for Greyhound's new Boston -- New York City VIP Bus Plus service that was launched July 4th. Greyhound inaugurated the luxury service last March between Montreal and New York City.

The four girls are the result of a carefully planned, lengthy recruiting program which featured heavy advertising in Black newspapers.

Katie and Dorothy are Brooklyn, N. Y. residents, Barbara lives in Hartford, Conn. and Sheila in Springfield, Vt.

Qualities needed to be a Greyhound hostess are "poise, warmth, understanding and versatility" according to Greyhound's New York Regional Manager A. L. McLaughlin.

Dorothy echoes this as she says "I enjoy meeting and talking to people -- and learning new ideas and problems we have to face and overcome today." Sheila feels that an individual should like himself and enjoy living -- "then his happiness will rub off on other people!"

The four hostesses have a variety of backgrounds. Katie, a native of Wilson, N. C., has been a receptionist, secretary and model. Two years at Durham Business College, Durham, N. C., then a secretarial stinted Dorothy to becoming a Bus Plus hostess.

Barbara worked as a secretary and dental assistant prior to joining Greyhound. The native of Emporia, Va. also attended the Atlantic School of Hartford, in Hartford, Conn. -- an airline stewardess training school. Sheila, another graduate of the Atlantic School of Hartford, earned a B. A. degree from Hasting College in Hasting, Neb., and later worked in a stuffed animal factory!

What are some of the problems a bus hostess encounters? "No matter how busy or tired you are, you still have to look fresh and energetic," says Katie. Barbara adds "Have you ever tried walking down an aisle of a bus with a tray full of soft drinks?"

The girls' duties include welcoming passengers a board, taking orders for and serving refreshments and lunch, passing out magazines, newspapers and tourist information, selecting relaxing stereo music and pointing out en route scenic points of interest.

Bus Plus hostesses also answer questions about Greyhound service.

Days off mean horseback riding and sailing expeditions for Katie. A tropical fish enthusiast, Miss Barnes also enjoys dancing, interior decorating and "new faces." Dorothy's leisure time is devoted to tennis and sewing. Cooking, reading and more sports complete the native of Sanford, N. C.'s list.

Singing, dancing and jazz headline Barbara's interests. Sewing and bowling fill in any time to spare.

Sheila, born in Springfield, Vt., is an outdoors buff. Swimming and camping rate high with her -- as does playing the guitar.

Unlike Greyhound's Montreal -- New York City VIP Bus Plus hostesses, the four Boston -- New York girls are home-based. They work a two days on-two days off cycle. All four girls are single.

Uniforms for the hostesses consist of bright red, white and blue mix and match ensembles. Each girl decides daily whether she'll wear the skirt or slacks outfit. The uniforms accent the busline's new red, white and blue flowing-stripe exterior paint scheme -- creating an All-American look inside and out.

"We meet some very nice people," Barbara says. "Quite a few businessmen go up to New York on the Bus Plus," she adds.

Coffee, Tea, COKE, 7-up, TAB or milk anyone?

COFFEE, TEA OR MILK inquires new Greyhound hostess Dorothy McClendon. Operating between Boston and New York City, the new luxury service features 38-passenger seating, wall-to-wall carpeting and stereo music. Miss McClendon serves refreshments and lunch, passes out magazines, newspapers and tourist information and points out en route scenic points of interest. Called "VIP Bus Plus," the service also operates between Montreal and New York City.

VOLUNTEERS TIME: Charles R. Williams, 24, a native of Indianapolis, has volunteered his time this summer to assist members of the NAACP National Planning Committee headquartered in the Goodman Building, 30 W. Washington St. Robert Williams, committee chairman, had nothing but praise for his assistant. Charles will return to school in the fall to pursue a B. A. Degree in business administration in Chicago, Ill. The NAACP 1973 national convention will be held in the Hoosier Capitol. (Recorder photo by Charles Wheeler).

Volunteer's efforts results in top entertainment in city

Before he left this city for Black Hawk College, Moline, Ill., last week to pursue studies toward a B.A. Degree, Charles R. Williams, 24, chalked up many hours as a devout volunteer in the office of the 1973 NAACP National Convention Planning Committee located in the Goodman Building, Suite 305, 30 W. Washington St.

Charles, whose services were highly praised by Robert Williams, committee general chairman, laid the groundwork for plans to promote performances by top entertainers in Indianapolis to raise much needed funds for the 1973 convention which will meet here next July.

Tentatively, the committee plans a performance by the rocking Jackson Five, on Sunday, Oct. 22, and an appearance by world-renown Isaac Hayes on Sunday, Nov. 19.

Charles took the initiative through many channels to get a commitment from these performers, and there was much red tape involved. He seemingly enjoyed his two months of work with the NAACP, and although he is now in Illinois, he has assured Mr. Williams that he will keep in close touch so far as planning money raising activities for the national convention is concerned.

This summer Charles worked daily from 9:30 a.m. till 5:30 p.m. without pay. His time and experience were most productive. Charles proved to have as much dedication and devotion as Mr. Williams. The Williamses, Charles and Robert, are not related but both have stamina and project unending energy when it comes to the NAACP national convention planning.

Charles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest (Dorothy) Williams of 6131 Woodside Drive, is a native of Indianapolis. He attended Schools 36 and 42 and attended Crispus Attucks High School for two years before moving to Chicago in 1963. Upon completion of school in Illinois, he entered the U.S. Navy where he studied and worked in the legal field for three years. He has also completed courses from the Chicago Accountant Society.

During the third year of his naval career, he volunteered for duty in Vietnam where he was cited for his administrative ability while working with the commander, Military Sealift Command, Vietnam. Charles was responsible for implementing English classes for the Vietnamese.

During his last month in Vietnam, the young serviceman was offered a civilian position with a department of defense Contractor, Alaska Barge and Transport Inc., as a purchasing agent and later as an office manager. He has been employed since September 1968 to June of 1972 in Vietnam and surrounding countries such as Thailand and Hong Kong.

Charles is on leave of absence from his job in order to pursue a B.A. Degree in business administration at Black Hawk College, Moline, Ill.

It is also noteworthy to mention that Charles was the vice-chairman of the Afro-American Cultural Association in Saigon, Vietnam. This indicates that working in the area of race relations in nothing new for Mr. Williams.

Black domestic worker suing to receive disability funds

In a suit filed in Federal court, a 58-year-old north-side black woman is seeking total disability funds since she has been unable to work the past four years due to injuries suffered in an accident.

In a petition prepared by the Legal Services Organization Atty. John Manning, Mrs. Eula Mae Fisher of 2292 Indianapolis Ave., a disabled domestic worker, is seeking to gain an overhaul of the Social Security Act disability insurance minimum standards and for an award in her own four-year disability.

In her class action lawsuit Mrs. Fisher charged that the act's requirement of a minimum of $50 in pay each quarter from a single employer discriminates against workers like her who may earn well above the $50 minimum, but from multiple employers denying them coverage.

The complainant is asking that she be allowed to press her suit with fee legal help. She is presently living on aid from the Center Township Trustee's office and an $80 monthly allowance from the Marion County Department of Public Welfare and has no money to pay a lawyer or court costs, she explained.

Mrs. Fisher was denied disability payments, she alleges, because Federal law does not require employers to report all payments to domestics, her full and honest entitlement was not reported in her case record, and none of the hearings at several levels recognized her claim that she was entitled to coverage, even without a lowered minimum-income cut-off.

She asked that the court recognize her as a representative of a clearly identifiable class of black domestics who are victims of unfair discrimination in the Social Security entitlement provisions.

Mrs. Fisher said she worked at least nine years for various families before she was injured Oct. 5, 1968, while working as a dishwasher for the McCurdy Hotel at Evansville. She suffered a back injury that she says has prevented her from earning a self-supporting income since then. She exhausted her last appeal when the Social Security appeals council denied her claim June 28, she contended.

sped to 2004 Ruckle, where officers discovered the body of a man identified as Garfield Blanchard, 36, lying in the front yard at that address. Recovered from under the body was a fully-loaded .38-caliber pistol.

Blanchard, investigators learned, occupied an upstairs apartment at 2004 Ruckle. The accused slayer, Jesse J. Ivey 28, who lived in a downstairs apartment in the large frame residence that has been converted into an apartment house.

During the course of the investigation, Ivey approach several police officers, admitted the shooting and claimed that he had acted in self-defense.

Leading officers into his apartment where a single-shot 12-gauge shotgun, believed to be the murder weapon, was recovered Ivey admitted shooting Blanchard, who he claimed to know only casually, "after he came to my apartment and threatened me with that pistol."

"I didn't even know his name and I haven't the slightest idea why he would want to shoot me because I hadn't done anything to him," Ivey explained to Det. Sgt. James Parnell who is handling the investigation.

"After he threatened to kill me I grabbed my shotgun which I keep by the door and fired at him; I was really afraid," the accused slayer emphasized.

The force of the shotgun blast, fired from a distance of about four feet, knocked Blanchard off the front porch and sent his body sprawling into the front yard.

"He was probably dead before he hit the ground," Parnell said in describing the gaping wound in the right side of the victim's face.

Despite Ivey's self-defense plea, the seasoned murder investigator said Wednesday, "We don't know at this point just what happened between those two men, but I'm convinced that he (Ivey) isn't telling us everything. There is more to it than he admits."

Parnell said he has been unable to locate Ivey's common-law wife who was in the apartment at the time of the shooting but left before police arrived at the murder scene.

"She could probably shed some light on this thing, but our efforts to locate her have been unsuccessful up to now," Parnell related.

The victim's common-law wife was upstairs at the time of the shooting. She identified the .38-caliber pistol as belonging to Blanchard and added that she was unaware of any bad blood that may have existed between the victim and Ivey.

Less than 45 minutes later, officers were summoned to 2127 N. Oxford, where they found the body of Walter Barber, 33, of 3421 N. Capitol, on the sidewalk in front of that address. He had been shot twice in the left side of his chest with a small caliber pistol.

Three men, identified as Ernie French, 29, of 2342 N. Central, Apt. 7; Lonnie Roberson, 24, 2342 N. Central, Apt. 1, and Ernie Anderson, 2342 N. Central, Apt. 7, were apprehended across the street from the shooting scene by a police officer who saw them dispose of a .22-caliber revolver at that location.

Police had been dispatched to the scene before the actual shooting after receiving a telephone report of an attempted car theft. Mrs. Ida Mae McCauley, 38, of the Oxford Street address told police investigators that Barber had been visiting at her home when he noticed three men attempting to break into his car which was parked at the curb in front of the McCauley residence.

Armed with a .22-caliber revolver, Barber went outside to investigate while Mrs. McCauley telephoned police to report the attempted car theft. Mrs. McCauley said she was unable to hear the conversation that took place between Barber and the three suspects but, she reported, a scuffle erupted and several shots rang out before Barber slumped to the sidewalk.

Police said the trio apparently jumped Barber, wrestled the gun away from him and pumped two shot into his chest before attempting to flee. One of the accused slayers, Ernie French, was shot in the foot during the scuffle over the gun. He was treated at Marion County General Hospital before being jailed on a first-degree murder charge.

The arrests were made by officers arriving at the scene only seconds after the shots were fired. Ivey and three arrested in connection with Barber's murder are being held without bond in the county jail.

aralism." Dr. Jackson also cautioned the delegates against sending any man to the White House who has little or no regard for the people's vote.

"It matters not how many civil rights bills are passed nor how many new representatives are put into the Cabinet of the President. Unless there is a change of mind, there cannot be a change in attitude. Our next step forward is to realize that our minds are American minds."

"For many of us the method is still protest and the emphasis is still on force. We have all been influenced by American culture and standards and although we are not all scholars or leaders in many professions we do have great opportunities to help ourselves. During the past 18 years of progress we have reached a degree of maturity and such a mature mind can do more than protest. This period since 1954 is one of the richest stages in the potential of Negroes since the Emancipation."

"There has developed in America a movement which I call the cult of revenge. Its primary philosophy is that the nation cannot do enough good to wipe out the sins committed against our forefathers. The cult's purpose is to punish those whose ancestors once held our race in chains. Out of this cult sprang the idea of reparations."

"Many advocate black supremacy so they are no longer dependent upon white people but some of these same leaders are accepting support from white persons or groups without making public to their own people this back-stage action."

"This new idea of segregation is based on the notion that the establishment called the United States of America is too corrupt to be saved and is too much committed to racism to be cured or healed. It advocates little or no fellowship between black and white, an emotional interpretation of a life situation that cannot be justified in any scientific approach to human society. If segregation is one of his agents had learned this week Williams had reportedly gone to Gary with $650 to buy a small amount of heroin which was to have been returned to Indianapolis.

Owens, describing Williams as "mere peanuts" in the lucrative drug traffic, said he believed that Williams had no connections in the drug marketing operation.

"He probably went to Gary to make a small buy and the boys up there just ripped him off for that $650 and then killed him," Owens said.

Gary homicide investigators, however, believe Williams' murder could well be connected with the "family" war for control of the city's narcotics traffic.

On Monday, Lake County Sheriff's investigators found the body of a Gary man that had been dumped on the outskirts of the Steel City.

The victim was identified as Caesar Wright, a known operative in the Gary dope war.

Earlier this year, Yvette Staton, who had been scheduled to testify against Frederick (Cool Freddie) Smith, reputed head of Gary's most lucrative narcotics ring, was slain on an Indianapolis Eastside Street.

John Ross, also of Gary, was shot and critically wounded at the same time, he recovered and is presently being held in protective custody by federal authorities.

Nineteen other people have died so far this year in Gary's bloody dope war.

an effort to determine the critical needs of black communities, so that he and his administration can work to fully alleviate any ills. He also took a strong position on drug abuse and promised to take strong action to relieve the state of the scourge of drug pushers and to institute new programs for treatment and cure for drug addicts.

Ray Crowe, popular Republican legislator who has served three sessions as a Representative, introduced Dr. Bowen as a man "I completely trust." Crowe related his years of service with Bowen and asserted that "whenever Dr. Bowen gives his word, he will deliver." He also told the audience that leaders of the Black Republican Coordinating Committee of Marion County had held a special meeting with the Republican gubernatorial candidate last week and had obtained assurance from Bowen that his administration would address specific needs of blacks and would deliver services to the black communities throughout Indiana.

"Blacks of Indiana will experience a new day of achievement in Indiana, if Otis R. Bowen is elected Governor," Crowe assured the audience. Bill Hudnut, candidate for 11th District Congressman, told the meeting of his concern for the tragic events which transpired at the Olympic games which took the lives of 16 people. He related this conflict of two races to the conflicts which are present in the United States and Indianapolis.

"Racism exists today in Indianapolis," he stated. "I seek to use the office of Congressman to eradicate racism in our city and our country. I promise you that, if elected, I will perform in this interest," the popular candidate declared to the applause of the more than 100 guests.

David O. Meeker, Deputy Mayor, set the keynote for the meeting when he reviewed the accomplishments in the city of Indianapolis over the past four years and told of the many gains registered by blacks during the Republican administration of this city over this period.

"We have performed in the interest of all the people of this city," Meeker asserted. "More than 20 million dollars has been invested in the black community of our city. We have constructed more housing and created more jobs than any administration before."

"We will not abandon the inner city of Indianapolis. We Republicans will continue to pour all the resources at our command into the inner city in hopes that we will be able to renew the black community and bring all blacks up to the social and economic levels they aspire to."

Elwood "Bud" Hillis, Republican Congressman of the 5th District seeking re-election, said he was looking forward to working with blacks of Indianapolis. His district includes a portion of the northside community starting at 38th Street. Hillis pointed out the many programs he has worked for in Congress which would aid blacks and also noted that his Washington staff includes several black members, including Paula Parker of Indianapolis.

Don Kelly, chairman of the breakfast, served as master of ceremonies. Mary VanBuren, candidate for the Legislature in the 34th District, spoke. Cleo Barnett, 23rd Ward Chairman, introduced Hudnut and Fred Davidson introduced Hillis.

Thomas Parker, Republican Area Coordinator and Director of the Parking Meter Department for city government, gave the purpose of the meeting.

James C. Cummings, Jr., chairman of the Black Republican Coordinating Committee of Marion County, spoke of the purposes of the committee and assured those present that the organization was attempting to work in the interest of all black people in Marion County. He noted that this election offers an unusual opportunity for black advancement, if blacks can come together in unity and elect Republican candidates who will work with blacks.

Black Disciples cite Fiers; whites challenged speaker

WILSON, N.C.,-----

The general minister and president of the Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ) traced the racial changes he has observed during his ministry while speaking on the topic "Reflections of Black and White Together" during the group's black national convocation.

The review was made by Dr. A. Dale Fiers of Indianapolis who asserted that breaking barriers between races has come in stages in the church.

He cited as an example the acceptance of black youth in white camp programs after first bringing black faculty to the camp staff, then having fraternal visits between black and white youth and finally integration of the camping program.

Dr. Fiers, who will retire before the August 1974 convocation, was presented a certificate of appreciation for service to the convocation by the president, Raymond E. Brown of Indianapolis.

Mr. Brown also presented him an African batus, the symbol of the head of the household, calling Dr. Fiers the "head of the household of faith of the Disciples of Christ." Dr. Fiers will retire in October 1973.

Also speaking at the convocation was a prominent black civil rights leader, Dr. Otis Moss of Cincinnati, Ohio, who said white America needs to "convert" its "segregated" vocabulary to recognize the beauty of blackness.

"We need to revolutionize our vocabulary. When we are converted, our vocabulary should be converted also. We have segregated our vocabulary. The thrust of liberation is to see the beauty of blackness. If you deny it, you declare war on God," Dr. Moss said.

He continued: "Some people are frightened by the word 'black.' History has played some tricks on us and given us a perverted concept of what is beautiful, true, and good."

Challenging the 300 black Disciples meeting in their biennial convocation, Dr. Moss asserted that the struggle for personhood means standing upright with "only the bottoms of your feet touching the ground and the rest of you mingling with the stars."

"The struggle for personhood is to humanize humanity and to spiritualize institutions, to be oneself in a world which keeps demanding conformity," he said.

Hugh Dillion's standing court order to desegregate."

Bishop Craine said boundaries were affixed to the two schools which prevent integration and perhaps worst of all destroy what could have been one of the best K-6 programs and schools in the entire system.

Speaking for the league, Bishop Craine said that it appears that most whites have been able to escape the burden of educational chaos created by policies which appear to be formulated mainly for the purpose of black exclusion from any kind of decent education.

"The Urban League strongly feels that this, or any school board can not be allowed to continue practices which may be illegal and that deprive citizens of their right to quality education. We have a great responsibility to the people we represent. For these reasons we feel compelled to take the following actions:

"1. Our one the site inspection of School 114 has led us to believe that there may well be serious health and safety hazards due to construction. We therefore are requesting the state board of health to inspect the school and its grounds. . . .

"2. We are requesting the state Department of Public Instruction to send personnel to School 114 in order to determine its academic capability under all these strenuous conditions. . . .

"3. We request the board to refrain from any action that are contrary to sound educational practices and that go against court orders. . . . We ask this board to rescind its resolution creating a seventh and eighth grade unit at School 114 and allowing a transfer policy for kindergarten that could possibly create segregation."

Bishop Craine said the league has engaged attorneys to take legal action against the school system and the board if the decision was not rescinded.

"...the Urban League feels these rather harsh actions are necessary in order to protect the rights of thousands of black and other poor minority children from irremediable damage."

"They wanted to keep him out," said Roderick Corpew of Chesapeake, Va., who was grand comptroller at Lodge headquarters in Philadelphia until he was dismissed by Mr. Reynolds because he criticized the grand exalted ruler's actions in letters and conversations with other members.

William P. Melvin, 59, of Jersey City, N.J., was critical of the exclusion of Mr. Honore, but was more critical of the practice he said had grown under the Reynolds regime of selling honors that formerly were won through hard work.

stitutions and jails.

Its initial act was the shocking murder October 12, 1965 of Patrolman Thomas Graham with his own service revolver in the basement of the City-County Building which houses the city lockup, first stop for arrestees. His body was found near a coat later identified as belonging to Harris along with an arrest slip for the suspect.

Investigators began their massive manhunt theorizing that Harris, a burglary suspect, had shot the arresting officer and fled as he was being transported from the squad car to an elevator. Their effort wound up with him being nabbed at an abandoned house located at 1614 Broadway.

Forty officers converged on the Eastside frame dwelling acting on a tip supplied by an anonymous informant. For three years, the suspect was a patient at a Westville mental institution until the court ruled him fit for trial. This segment of the drama ended with his conviction in Marion Criminal Court, Division 2, in 1969. He was later granted a new trial and a change of venue to Hancock Superior Court.
